

HAAND
HOSPITALITY

"We think of our ceramic work as canvasses for the food that will be presented on it."

About Haand

Chef Tested — Working with Hospitality since 2014
— Used daily in over 175 kitchens

We built Haand around the goal of designing and producing high quality modern ceramics with traditional craft methods. Since 2012, our designs have found their way into homes, restaurants, and galleries across the country. We do everything in-house. From prototyping to glaze formulation, we believe that to do something right, we must be involved in the entire process.

Haand's products and manufacturing are influenced in equal parts by craftspeople and industry. Haand produces objects at a volume, yet each piece is touched by our makers' hands as it moves from concept to table, from minerals and water to durable and high performance ceramics. Our workshop is located in Burlington, NC. Haand is a diverse and inclusive workforce. We know that an object made with care, intention, and love will shine when placed next to a similar mass produced object.

Ripple

When you throw a stone into a small pool, the ripples move out from the central point of impact. They spread until they hit the edges of the pool — the rocks, the logs, the shore. The waves write the story of the space they travelled within through the language of the morphing ripples. This series of vessels and plates are an attempt to freeze and recreate this phenomena through porcelain.

Our Finishes

Formulated & refined over years

We formulate all glazes in our studio to ensure control of the final color and finish. We carefully select and test all of our formulas and ingredients to ensure just the right balance is struck between the natural and the refined, and spend years honing and tweaking until it is all just right. Our porcelain and glazes combine to have a completely unique feeling in your hand. Each glaze formula can have individual quirks, and glazers will adjust the amount of time a piece is dunked and how they turn their wrists to allow the glaze to drain off consistently.

Core Finishes

White
Clean, crisp, classic

Our satin white is simple at first glance, but looking deeper reveals hidden depths and variation, like a beautiful fragment of Greek marble or a sheet of handmade paper intended for a 19th century manuscript.

Our bestselling core colors were selected because they fit our shapes perfectly and are at home in any operation.

Celadon
Cool, fresh, verdant

Soft cool green, based on historic Korean Goryeo period glazes from the 12th century. The satin surface and subtle application variations make this quiet glaze come alive.

Black
Sophisticated, luxe, warm

A warm satin black reminiscent of cast iron or polished charred wood.

Grey
Modern, minimal, elegant

A neutral, contemporary grey. Not a shadow, but the hue of a well loved tool-chest or the sweater you wear around the house.

Signature Finishes

Burl
Earthy, inviting, unique

A robust golden brown, the satin surface has the appearance of highly polished wood with darker variegated patterns blending into the surface.

These signature colors are distinctive, unique, and are designed to pop on any tabletop.

Concrete
Variegated, Industrial

A gray background with dark speckled surface, this glaze reminded us of weathered, industrial walls.

Birch
Natural, organic, relaxed

A satin white glaze speckled with brown, it reminded us of birch bark, or quail's eggs, or a white river stone discovered in the moonlight.

Fern
Lush, botanical, sumptuous

A deep green mottled with lighter greens; reminiscent of the vegetal color of midsummer ferns growing quietly in the shade.

Special Order

Due to manufacturing considerations, these finishes require a longer lead time. Contact us for current lead times.

Gloss White

Classic, fresh, plush

Our performance alternative to Satin White, designed to be resistant to the rigors of high volume environments.

Terra

Earthen, natural, clean

Terra is a colored porcelain body we have engineered to perform to the same level as our standard white porcelain body. It is modeled after the coarse, dense earth dug up (often from mere yards away from a workshop) and employed by potters throughout history. A dark brown colored porcelain exterior paired with a contrasting satin white interior that walks the line of rustic and chic.

Our Process

Handmade, modern craft. Made by a human.

The science and alchemy of our proprietary porcelain make our dishes completely unlike anything else you have ever held in your hands. Our work is lead free and meets all FDA criteria for tableware. It is microwave and dishwasher safe, and is used daily in over 175 restaurants and thousands of homes around the world. Our plate's edges are rounded to help with chip-resistance. When taken care of and stored properly, our ware will last a lifetime. Because of the handmade nature of our production there will be slight variations between pieces; something we celebrate as a reminder of its transition from raw material to finished object.

Ingredients & Care

Made to withstand the rigors of a commercial kitchen.

Our work is used daily in fine dining restaurants, traveling from the kitchen to the table and back — becoming an essential part of the diner's experience and the chef's expression. We intentionally fire our porcelain to the same temperatures of fine industrial porcelain, and follow strict guidelines for selecting colorants and glazes with the intention of creating a safe, ethically sourced product that you, the end user, can proudly and joyfully use.

Simplicity as a mantra

Derived from the Old Norse word for a small, independent homestead, the Skali Collection is modeled after common historical pottery forms—the everyday objects used by people around the world throughout history. This series embodies our vision of true Farm-to-Table design, and we're thrilled to introduce the Skali Flats to this cherished collection. With their low rim and perfectly imperfect symmetry, these pieces celebrate the honest character of handcrafted ceramics while creating the ideal canvas that truly lets the chef's work shine.
